

A

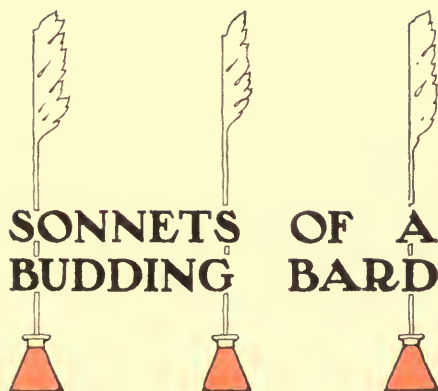

0009158858

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

California
Regional Library

BOOKS BY
NIXON WATERMAN

A BOOK OF VERSES
IN MERRY MOOD
BOY WANTED

FORBES & COMPANY
CHICAGO

*Sometimes I get to wishin' I might be
A little lamb like Mary's, fond and true,
With Susan Sanderson as Mary, see?
We 'd play amidst the clover sweet with dew,
And everywhere that she wast there 'd be me,
And if she wasn 't, I 'dst be elsewhere, too.*

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

BY
NIXON WATERMAN
WITH DRAWINGS BY
JOHN A. WILLIAMS

CHICAGO
FORBES & COMPANY

1907

Copyright, 1907, by
THE CENTURY CO.

Copyright, 1907, by
FORBES AND COMPANY

Printed by COLONIAL PRESS:
C. H. Simonds & Co., Boston, U. S. A.

CONTENTS

PS
3545
W298c

SONNET

PAGE

I.	Lines Wrote in School Whilst I Shouldst Have Been Studyin' My Lesson	11
II.	Thoughts Thought Whilst Thinkin' about Mary and Her Pet Lamb	13
III.	Lines Wrote Whilst Thinkin' about How Pa Acts When Dressin' Up	15
IV.	Lines Wrote Whilst Realizin' We Oughtst to Be Kind to Dumb Brutes	17
V.	Sonnet Wrote Whilst Thinkin' of Our Parents in the Garden of Eden	19
VI.	Lines Wrote Whilst Smartin' from Punishment Received for Lyn'	21
VII.	Thoughts Thought about Ma's Notions Regardin' Love and House-keepin'	23
VIII.	Thoughts Thought Whilst Thinkin' of Peary on a Hot Sum- mer Day	25
IX.	Thoughts Thought Whilst Thinkin' of a Thanksgivin' Day Turkey	27
X.	Sonnet Wrote Whilst Thinkin' of My Sister Maymie's Homely Beau	29

CONTENTS

SONNET	PAGE
XI. Lines Wrote Whilst Recovering from an Accident Caused by a Hornet	31
XII. Lines Wrote on a Summer Day Whilst Thinkin' of a Soda Fountain	33
XIII. Lines Wrote After Bein' Scolded for Not Doin' as Children Used To	35
XIV. Lines Wrote On Readin' How Cleopatra Made Men Act Very Foolish	37
XV. Sonnet Wrote Whilst Thinkin' What I Wouldst Do with Carnegie's Gold	39
XVI. Some Thoughts Thought Whilst Havin' to Bathe in a Bath-tub	41
XVII. Lines Wrote in School Whilst Throwin' Glances at Susan Sanderson	43
XVIII. Thoughts Thought Whilst Mowin' the Lawn on a Saturday Afternoon	45
XIX. Sonnet Wrote on the Fly-leaf of My Grammar Durin' School Hours	47
XX. Thoughts Thought on Hearin' Folks Find Fault with the Weather	49
XXI. Lines Wrote After Seein' Shakespeare's Hamlet from an Upper Gallery	51
XXII. Sonnet Wrote Whilst Retrospectively Contemplatin' My First Cigar	53
XXIII. Sonnet Wrote Whilst Thinkin' About a Vacation Spent on a Farm	55
XXIV. Lines Composed After Seein' a Book Full of Byron's Love Letters	57
XXV. Sonnet Wrote After Hearin' a Youth Oratin' about "Casa-bianca"	59

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE IN SCHOOL WHILST I SHOULDST
HAVE BEEN STUDYIN' MY LESSON

I 'VE just about madest up my mind to be
A poet such as Shakespeare and the rest
Of them big literary gents, and dressed
In velvet clothes, write up the things I see
In some grand style to show that Browning he Hast been done up! And when plain folks request

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

My autograph, then, throwin' out my chest,
I 'llst make them wish that they wast great like me!

I 'm tired dwellin' midst surroundin's where
Cheap things art always waitin' to be done:
I 'dst rather loaf and dream and have long hair
Like all great poets dost: and, oh! what fun,
To dash off lays and sell them, then and there,
Whenever I 'llst be needin' any "mon."

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

THOUGHTS THOUGHT WHILST THINKIN' ABOUT MARY AND HER PET LAMB

FULL oft I 've read how Mary's lamb didst go
Where'er his kind and lovin' mistress went,
As if the little creature wast content
If it couldst only be where she wast. Oh,
I realize what madest it hanker so
To be in school that day: it surely meant

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

It loved her! Yet, that mean old teacher bent
On bossin' things — he didst not seem to know.

Sometimes I get to wishin' I might be

A little lamb like Mary's, fond and true,
With Susan Sanderson as Mary, see?

We 'd play amidst the clover sweet with dew,
And everywhere that she wast there 'd be me,
And if she wasn't, I 'dst be elsewhere, too.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE WHILST THINKIN' ABOUT HOW
PA ACTS WHEN DRESSIN' UP

WHILST pa and ma art dressin' up to go
To church or somewhere, so I've heard ma tell
The neighbor women, pa tears 'round pell-mell
And turns things upside down, and wants to know
Who hid his clothes! and makes ma stop and show
Him where to find them. Ma she know'st full well

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

They 're where he 's kept them since he camest to dwell

In our house: that 's been twenty years or so.

And when ma 's donest her level best to try

To help pa so he wilt not fuss and fret,

And found his clothes, shoes, collar, cuffs and tie,

And there ain't nothin' more for her to get,

Pa looks at her and with an awful sigh

Says: "Thunderation! Ain't you ready yet?"

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE WHILST REALIZIN' WE OUGHTST
TO BE KIND TO DUMB BRUTES

WISE William Goat, familiarly addressed
As "Billy!" Thou art an amusin' brute,
For thou hast some traits that are truly cute
And others, still, so it must be confessed,
That I hast learned in sorrow to detest.

'Tis fun to see thee, in thy manner mute,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

When boys dost tease thee, give some one a “beaut,”
Yet, he who’s “it” deems thee a sorry jest.

Yestreen I met some other boys, and we,
At thy expense, wert havin’ much delight
Till thou got’st ’round to where I didst not see
That thou wast headed my way. Sorry plight!
That’s why I write this standin’ — woe is me! —
And slept’st upon my bosom all last night.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE WHILST THINKIN' OF OUR PARENTS IN THE GARDEN OF EDEN

O ADAM and O Eve! How very nice
It must have been to live where you wast at.
No neighbors anywhere with whom to spat,
Nor any one to give you free advice.
Ma says she 'd gladly pay 'most any price
For such a lay-out. And she's certain that

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Because there wert no servants in your flat
Is how you camest to call it "Paradise."

And pa says that if Eve hadst dressed the way

Our women do we shouldst have missed the fate
Of goin' forth into the world to stray,

For she 'd be somewhere, still, inside the gate
Delayin' things, as women dost to-day,
A-tryin' for to pin her hat on straight.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE WHILST SMARTIN' FROM PUN-ISHMENT RECEIVED FOR LYIN'

O WASHINGTON! (O Reader, hast thou not
In readin' high-toned poems wrote for show,
Observed how many of them start with "O?"
Well, anyhow, there is an awful lot.)
The noble deeds thou wrought'st are not forgot
But serve to make thy name, where'er we go,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

A household word. If all they say is so
Thou didst some mighty clever stunts. That's what!

And yet, thy fame belongest to thy dad;
Thou shinest by reflected light, forsooth,
For thou 'rt the only boy that ever had

A pa who, when his son dared tell the truth
About some kiddish prank didst not get mad
And lamm him! O thou heaven-protected youth!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

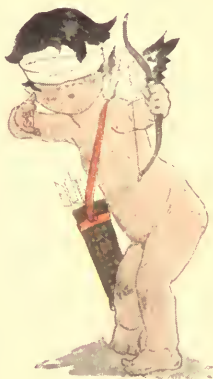

THOUGHTS THOUGHT ABOUT MA'S NOTIONS
REGARDIN' LOVE AND HOUSE-KEEPIN'

WHEN sister Maymie saidst she 'd like to learn
To sweep the keys of a piano-forte,
Ma she spoke up and cut her right off short
And saidst she 'd rather that a girl of her 'n
Shouldst know just how to sweep a room, nor spurn
A poor but honest man, for that's the sort

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Pa wast. And ma insists no woman ort
To spend more money than a man canst earn.

A kid-gloved dandy with a stove-pipe hat
Wed ma's proud cousin. Say, but he wast sly!
"Our home shalt be next thing to Heaven!" That Wast what he vowed. Ma says that that's no lie
For they art packed into a stingy flat
Four stairways up, and plumb against the sky!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

THOUGHTS THOUGHT WHILST THINKIN' OF
PEARY ON A HOT SUMMER DAY

O PEARY! With the scorchin' summer here
And everybody payin' double price
For little weeny, teeny bits of ice,
It dost no longer seem so very queer
That thou shouldst have the bravery to steer
Thy ship up North where it is cool and nice.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

I 'll bet you smile whilst thinkin' thou hast twice
The fun we 're havin' at this time of year.

And, say! old boy, since thou dost understand
The pole is an imaginary spot,
Why not "imagine" thou hast found it and
Of time and trouble save an awful lot?
Couldst others track thee to that frozen land
And prove thou didst not find it? I guess not!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

THOUGHTS THOUGHT WHILST THINKIN' OF A THANKSGIVIN' DAY TURKEY

O EAGLE! emblem of my country, thou,
Who art the boss of every other bird,
My muse, to find the highfalutin word
With which to name thee, dost not know just how.
Yet 'tis not thee who hast, I must allow,
My patriotic breast the deepest stirred,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

And they who planned our country's banner erred
In makin' thee the sign to which we bow.

For whilst, O Eagle, thou dost dare to climb

The highest mountain peak and greet the sun,
It is the turkey that dost nearest rhyme

With all the lofty thrills that through us run;
He beats thee to a standstill every time,

For, stuffed and roasted — say! he takes the bun!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE WHILST THINKIN' OF MY SISTER MAYMIE'S HOMELY BEAU

O LOVE! 'Tis saidst that thou art blind. Alas!
I didst not think that it wast truly so
Until I saw my sister Maymie's beau
Who's awful stingy and as green as grass!
How love canst make such guys as he is pass
For something beautiful, I dost not know.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Hadst I my way, you bet! he 'd stand no show
Of settin' in our parlor wastin' gas.

He steals things, too! Last night whilst in a nook

Of our dark hall I heardst him say: "Alack!
I must steal one!" This morn I went'st to look

And found'st all our umbrellas in the rack,
And so I guess whatever 'twast he took,

My sister Maymie madest him give it back.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE WHILST RECOVERIN' FROM AN ACCIDENT CAUSED BY A HORNET

O HORNET! When I think'st what thou canst do
To make strong men just hump themselves and run,
Men who wouldst boldly face a ten-inch gun
But lack the "sand" to halt whilst you pursue,
And deem'st thy stinger something they wouldst rue,
I've wondered if, when things that weigh a ton

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Flee from thy wrath, thou dost not deem it fun
To chase folks that are so much bigger 'n you.

Didst I accordin' to my size possess

The means for gettin' even thou dost own,
'Twouldst be great sport to tackle — well, I guess! —

A boy 'most any size, and hear him moan
As I didst when thou gavest me that caress
From something hotter than the torrid zone!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE ON A SUMMER DAY WHILST
THINKIN' OF A SODA-FOUNTAIN

WHEN I'm a man I shalt not care to be
The President of these United States:
I'dst rather be the drug-store clerk who waits
On people at the soda-fountain. He
Hast lots more first-class fun, it seems to me,
For whilst the public dost not get rebates

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

On soda, he canst get it at cut rates,
And lots of times, I'll bet, he gets it free!

Of course, I know it must be pretty fine
To hear the brass bands and the big bass drums
Come marchin' by the White House all in line
And playin': "See, the Conquerin' Hero Comes!"
And, yet, no presidential job in mine:
The soda clerk's the one that gets the plums!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE AFTER BEIN' SCOLDED FOR NOT DOIN' AS CHILDREN USED TO

I YEARN'ST to live to be ten times as old
As wast Mathusalem, the patriarch:
Then when some older person durst remark:
"When I wast young the children were n't so bold
And always loved to do as they wert told,
And went to bed soon after it wast dark;"

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

I 'llst say to him: My errin' friend, now hark
To one who wilt no longer hear thee scold:

I knew thy great-great-great-grand-parents when
They wert sly youngsters vexin' their poor nurse,
And children now art good as they wert then!

They always have been stubborn, mean, perverse,
And always wilt be, since, alas! like men,
They 're just as heaven makes them — only worse!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE ON READIN' HOW CLEOPATRA
MADE MEN ACT VERY FOOLISH

TO-DAY I readst in an old history book
How Cleopatra used to make men do
Just any fool thing that she wanted to
By givin' them a "lovey-dovey" look.
Time wast, long, long ago, when I 'dst have shook
My head and saidst the story wast not true,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

But that, alas! that wast before I knew
Miss Susan S. who hast my fancy took.

To-day I hadst an apple I 'dst have not
Let any boy in school taste, but when she
Asked couldst she have a bite and took a lot,
I didst not mind at all, for, oh, to me,
Where she hadst bit hadst somehow made the spot
Taste awful sweet! This dost love rule us. See?

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE WHILST THINKIN' WHAT I
WOULDST DO WITH CARNEGIE'S GOLD

O GREAT Carnegie! With thy wealth, oh, my!
I dost not know exactly what I'd do,
But seem'st to me I'd have more fun than you
Art havin' with it. Anyhow, if I
Hadst money, as they say, "to burn," I'd try
To burn it here, for, oh! 'twouldst make me blue

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

To think I 'd have to smell it burnin' through
The endless eons of the by and by!

And you can bet if I hadst gold in bins
As thou hast got, in quantities so vast
Thou canst not spend it, I 'd buy diamond pins
And soda water to the very last!
And I 'd be sorry that I wast not twins
So I couldst spend my fortune twice as fast.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SOME THOUGHTS THOUGHT WHILST HAVIN' TO BATHE IN A BATH-TUB

I DON'T like bathin' in a bath-tub. Say!

It's no more like a good old swimmin'-hole

Where you can dive right in and splash and roll

Or anything you please, than work's like play!

Some afternoon of a hot summer day

When thou from school and poky things hast stole,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Oh, ain't it good for heart and brain and soul
To plunge right in and swim your own sweet way?

I pity folks who bathe where they must wear

A bathin'-suit! I wouldst have none in mine.

Give me a good old shady corner where

Nobody's lookin'. That's what I call "fine!"

And when I bathe in this sawed-off affair,

The swimmin'-hole's the thing for which I pine.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE IN SCHOOL WHILST THROWIN'
GLANCES AT SUSAN SANDERSON

“OH, what is love?” the poet asks. I guess
I 'dst better tell him. When a girl's cheeks seem
As fascinatin' to you as ice-cream,
And though snub-nosed and freckled, more or less,
She's still the phantom of pure loveliness
That ever and anon athwart your dream

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Comes stealin', whilst you scheme and scheme and scheme

To be where she is, thou 'rt in love! Oh, yes!

When you keep thinkin' how you 'dst squeeze her hand

If sometime thou couldst be her little glove,
And if thou feelst that thou wouldst like to stand,
With only just the frosty stars above,
In some big snowdrift 'neath her window and
Stay there forever, then thou art in love!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

THOUGHTS THOUGHT WHILST MOWIN' THE
LAWN ON A SATURDAY AFTERNOON

O CIRCUS DAY! So very brief art thou,
From early morn when first doth rise the tent
Till midnight comes and all the show hath went;
Thou 'rt like a swiftly passin' dream. Oh, how
I wish the laggin' tasks that wet the brow
With per-spi-ra-tion (sweat is what I meant)

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Would haste as thou dost haste. How different
This world wouldst be from what we find it now!

Or 'twouldst be better still if time wouldst pass,
Whilst laughin' at the antics of the clown,
As slow as run'st the sands within the glass

Whilst I, 'neath sun that almost melts me down,
Must mow the lawn. O Fate, why must, alas!

Thy smile be so much shorter than thy frown?

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE ON THE FLY-LEAF OF MY
GRAMMAR DURIN' SCHOOL HOURS

O EDUCATION! Maybe thou art all
Our teachers tell us, but just let me say
That if my folks wouldst let me have my way,
From early Spring till frost comes in the Fall
I 'dst be outdoors, you bet! a-playin' ball
Or otherwise enjoyin' each fine day.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

It seem'st a shame for boys to have to stay
Like culprits shut in by a prison wall!

I guess if you get rich folks wilt not care

If you don'tst know your grammar to a T,
For baby boys, you 'llst find 'most everywhere,

Art named for uncles who hast money, see?
Though they hain'tst got no learnin' they canst spare
Nor never spell their 'taters with a p.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

THOUGHTS THOUGHT ON HEARIN' FOLKS FIND
FAULT WITH THE WEATHER

I LOVE cold winter weather with the snow
A-driftin' on the walks I hast to clear,
And frost a-bitin' nose and cheek and ear,
With the thermometer "away below."
I also love the summer when it's so
Red-hot that clothes next to you all "adhere"

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

And everybody's frantic, pretty near,
And sayin' things that hot folks dost, you know?

I love both seasons, but I wish I could

Enjoy them whilst they're with us, for, you see,
It's winter when the summer seem'st so good,

And summer when the winter pleases me.

But, somehow, I have never understood

Why either of them whilst it's here's "n. g."

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES WROTE AFTER SEEIN' SHAKESPEARE'S
HAMLET FROM AN UPPER GALLERY

O SHAKESPEARE! Thou whom'st all the world dost think

Hast written some good things, I, too, wouldst pay
My best respects to thee; yet, wouldst I say
That whilst I like thee yet I dost not shrink
From tellin' thee that thou art on the "blink"

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

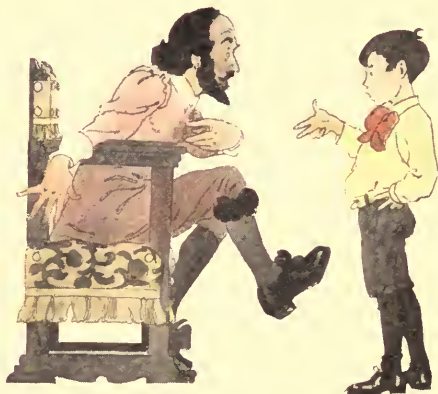

And very sadly out of date to-day.

Still, if thou 'lt follow my advice thou may
Still count as one of us, and get more "chink."

Your plays ain't any good the way they stand:

Thou ought'st to tone them up with something nice:
Some coon-songs, fire-engines, blood-hounds and

A swingin' bridge and chunks of floatin' ice
Wouldst make your old plays draw to beat the band,
And folks wouldst crowd your show at any price!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE WHILST RETROSPECTIVELY
CONTEMPLATIN' MY FIRST CIGAR

OH, woe is me! and other things like that!

Yestreen I soughtst to smoke my first cigar:

It gav'st my system a tremendous jar!

I didst not have the gumption of a gnat.

All night I couldst not tell where I wast at.

I wish I knew just what those cheap smokes are;

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

It seem'st to me they 're made of glue and tar.
Ah, me! I 'm weaker than a half-starved cat.

Oh, let them smoke henceforth, say'st I, who will,
For who am I that I shouldst dare condemn
Their vile tobacco? I have hadst my fill:
Let others have it; I sha'n'tst envy them,
For I 'llst not never smoke no more until
I 'm ten times older than Mathusalem!

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE WHILST THINKIN' ABOUT A VACATION SPENT ON A FARM

O FARMER, independentest of all
Mankind art thou! I know, because, last year
I spent my whole vacation, pretty near,
On Uncle Eben's farm, and though I'm small,
I hoed the corn and beans, and helped him haul
And stack his hay. I'dst work until I'dst fear

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

I 'dst just drop down and end my sad career
Before they 'dst give the welcome dinner call.

My uncle dost not weigh his words with care,
For once he told me that I wast a shirk;
But I wouldst rather breathe the country air
Than be a shut-in office-boy or clerk;
For I found out whilst visitin' out there
That I like farmin', but I hate farm work.

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

LINES COMPOSED AFTER SEEIN' A BOOK FULL OF BYRON'S LOVE LETTERS

ONE reason why I 'm 'most afraid to get
So famous like we poets always do,
Is that they 'll print my spoony letters, too,
As is the way with all of us who let
Our fancies caper. Hadst I thought whilst yet
Unknown, I 'dst be a poet, quite a few

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Endearin' words with which I soughtst to woo
More girls than one I 'dst not have wrote, you bet!

If Susan Sanderson shouldst find I sent
The valentine I saidst I wrote for her
To Jane Jones, too, the thirty cents I 've spent
For soda water 's wasted, I 'dst infer:
Why must we poets do things we 'll repent?
And oh! why thus didst me and Byron err?

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

SONNET WROTE AFTER HEARIN' A YOUTH
ORATIN' ABOUT "CASABIANCA"

O BOY, that stood'st upon the burnin' deck
And gotst thyself in our school readers and
The "Whoop-'er-up" school speakers of our land
Because thou wouldst not leave that sinkin' wreck,
Oh, don'tst thou think if thou hadst saved thy neck
And wisely cut and run to beat the band,

SONNETS OF A BUDDING BARD

Thou couldst have later done things still more grand?

Alas! too soon didst death thy valor check!

Oh, didst thou stay because thou couldst not swim?

Or wast it fame for which thy heart didst yearn?

Of course thou gotst a name time canst not dim,

But seemst to me that all I canst discern

In thy foolhardy, stickin'-to-it whim

Is that thou deemed the world hadst boys to burn.

University of California
SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY
305 De Neve Drive - Parking Lot 17 • Box 951388
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90095-1388

Return this material to the library from which it was borrowed.

NON-RENEWABLE

ILL/CLP
JUN 20 2001

DUE 2 WKS FROM DATE RECEIVED

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA
SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90095-1388

PS Waterman -
3545 Sonnets of a
W298s bard

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

A 000 915 885 8

W8.

PS
3545
W298s

Univers
South
Libr